1. The Working Group on the Universal Periodic Review, established in accordance with Human Rights Council resolution 5/1, held its twenty-eighth session from 6 to 17 November 2017. The review of Sri Lanka was held at the 16th meeting, on 15 November 2017. The delegation of Sri Lanka was headed by the Deputy Minister of National Policies and Economic Affairs, Harsha de Silva. I. Summary of the proceedings of the review process

A. Presentation by the State under review

5. Sri Lanka emphasized that it was participating in the review against the backdrop of a renewed and transformed local setting, led by its people at two historic elections. The victory of President Maithripala Sirisena at the 8 January 2015 presidential election and the uniting of the two main political parties under the National Unity Government following the parliamentary elections of August 2015 had enabled a fundamental shift in the country's political culture towards matters pertaining to human rights, greater openness, and engagement locally with its own citizens, with the United Nations and with the international community. Therefore, much of the progress had been achieved during a brief period, of roughly the past 2 years and 10 months.

6. With regard to the preparation of the national report for the universal periodic review, Sri Lanka highlighted the extensive and inclusive consultation process, which had involved ministries and departments, civil society representatives, and experts in different fields, and had involved two stages — the development of the National Human Rights Action Plan and the preparation of the draft national report.

7. The delegation expressed the Government's commitment to a process of truth-seeking, justice, reparation and guarantees of non-recurrence. Sri Lanka had worked with all parties concerned to adopt by consensus Human Rights Council resolution 30/1, which it had co-sponsored. The resolution envisaged the setting up of a permanent office on missing persons, a truth-seeking commission, a judicial mechanism with a special counsel, and a reparations office. Sri Lanka had also worked with the Council members to have the timeline for resolution 30/1 extended by two years, through the adoption by consensus of resolution 34/1 in March 2017. The delegation also stressed that investigations into allegations pertaining to human rights and humanitarian law violations during the conflict would not unfairly target or punish security forces specifically, but would be carried out through judicial processes, respecting due process.

8. Sri Lanka noted that it had intensified its engagement and cooperation both with special procedures and with treaty bodies. Since the last universal periodic review, Sri Lanka had participated in six reviews by treaty bodies, and the review by the Committee on the Rights of the Child was scheduled for January 2018. In December 2015, Sri Lanka had extended a standing invitation to all thematic special procedures. Eight thematic special procedure mandate holders and working groups had visited Sri Lanka since the last universal periodic review, with six of them being received since January 2015. Moreover, members of the Working Group on Arbitrary Detention were visiting from 4 to 15 December 2017, and the Special Rapporteur on the promotion and protection of the right to freedom of opinion and expression was visiting early in 2018. The delegation noted that the previous United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights had visited Sri Lanka in 2013 and the current High Commissioner had visited in February 2016, and that the Secretary-General of the United Nations had visited in September 2016.

9. During the period under review, Sri Lanka had become a State party to a number of international instruments. On 14 November 2017, the Cabinet of Ministers had approved the country's accession to the Optional Protocol to the Convention against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment. The delegation reported that the Human Rights Commission of Sri Lanka would be appointed as the national preventive mechanism. Sri Lanka had formally withdrawn its reservation to article 29 of the International Convention on the Protection of the Rights of All Migrants Workers and Members of Their Families, and had withdrawn all derogations notified under the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights by November 2015. A declaration had been made under article 22 of the Convention against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment recognizing the competence of the Committee against Torture to receive individual communications.

10. Sri Lanka highlighted the enactment of the nineteenth amendment to the Constitution, in May 2015. That amendment had reduced the powers of the Executive President, strengthened the independence of key institutions with the objective of depoliticizing the public service, reduced the President's term of office, restored the two-term limit of the executive presidency, reduced Parliament's term and curtailed the President's power to dissolve Parliament, among other things. The independence of the Human Rights Commission of Sri Lanka had also been strengthened following the enactment of the nineteenth amendment.

11. Sri Lanka reported the enactment by Parliament of the Assistance to and Protection of Victims of Crime and Witnesses Act, in February 2015, which provided for the payment of compensation to victims of crime and established a special fund for that purpose, and also of the Right to Information Act, which had come into operation on 3 February 2017.

12. Sri Lanka noted the regulations and measures for the eradication of child labour, including through a Special Presidential Task Force for the Protection of Children under the direct purview of the President. In June 2016, the President had signed a pledge on zero tolerance of child labour.

13. Sri Lanka noted that it had made, and continued to make, efforts to provide internally displaced persons with durable solutions. The Cabinet of Ministers had approved the National Policy on Durable Solutions for Conflict-Affected Displacement, in August 2016.

14. Sri Lanka highlighted the “Blue-Green Budget: the Launch of Enterprise Sri Lanka”, for 2018, which had been prepared on the basis of the Sustainable Development Goals. It noted that the Goals had been incorporated into government policies and programmes, including through the Sri Lanka Sustainable Development Act.

15. As for language and cultural rights, Sri Lanka reported that in March 2015 the Government had issued a circular to all government institutions in which it was stated that no prohibition existed on the national anthem being sung in the Tamil language, and on 4 February 2016 the national anthem was sung in both official languages, at the National Independence Day celebrations.

16. Sri Lanka noted that the initial design and contours of the Truth and Reconciliation Commission and the Reparations Office had been based on the inputs received through nationwide consultations carried out by a consultation task force comprised of 11 eminent civil society members. Sri Lanka had started the process of constitutional reform as a measure for guaranteeing non-recurrence of the conflict, on the basis of the framework resolution adopted in March 2017. The consultations in that regard were ongoing.

17. The Office on Missing Persons, which had become operational on 15 September 2017, was the first of the reconciliation mechanisms to be set up, with SL Rs 1.4 billion proposed to be allocated for it in the budget for 2018. Sri Lanka noted that having a section of the national budget expressly dedicated to reconciliation was unprecedented.
